INTRODUCTION

Situated between 22°-56' N and 24°-32' N and 91°-10' E and 92°-21' E, Tripura is essentially a border region. 65% of the total area is hilly land and the remaining 35% constitutes flat land. Six principal ranges of hills namely Baramura—Deotamura, Atharamura, Longtharai, Sardeng, Sakhan and Jampai increasing in height gradually, run north to south with an average distance of 12 miles between two ranges. Each range as a whole is higher than the one on its west. And the altitudes vary between 50' to 3080' ft. above the sea level. There are 12 river basins, eight of which are important. The drainage pours down north by the 'Khowai', 'Dholai', 'Manu', 'Juri' and the 'Longai', west by the 'Gumti' and south-west by the Fenny and Muhuri.

The climate of the Territory is generally hot and humid. The temperature generally varies between 8.9°c and 42°c. January is generally the coldest month and May is the hottest month of the year. The normal rainfall of the Territory is 2100.7 mm. Rains generally start in April and continue upto the end of October. Heaviest rainfall is in the month of June. The soil is lateritic with little water absorption capacity. The flat land in the valleys is alluvial consisting of sand, silt and clay.

Tripura is strategically important since it lies between the river valleys of Burma and East Pakistan. In fact, the Territory is cut off from the rest of India and is surrounded on three sides by East Pakistan with a long international boundary of about 930 kms. and forms an isolated pocket connected with the main land by only an access road through the hills to the border of Cachar District in Assam. The communication system in the area has never been easy and the Territory has always been regarded as one of the inaccessible areas of the region. With the construction of the

(ii)

Assam-Agartala Road, this area was linked with the rest of the country by road. In fact, even to-day the Assam-Agartala road serves as the life-line of the Territory. Before Independence, Tripura was entirely dependant on the Railway lines (the then Assam-Bengal Railways) running very close to its borders for communication. The railway stations of the surrounding districts of East Bengal were within a stone's throw from some of the subdivisional towns of Tripura. With the partition of the country all these Railway Stations had gone to East Pakistan and thus the communication system of Tripura was completely disrupted. Tripura has recently been linked with N. F. Railway by the opening of a metre gauge line from Patherkandi to Dharmanagar. Carriage of materials from Dharmanagar to different parts of the Territory has, therefore, to be done by roads. Regular air services operate from Calcutta to Agartala.

Tripura was a princely State. It acceded to the Indian Union in October 1949 and was administered as a part 'C' State. With the re-organisation of States from the 1st November, 1956 it became a Union Territory. This Territory is now administered under the Government of Union Territories Act, 1963. The head of the Administration is the Chief Commissioner. There is a popular Ministry and a Legislative Assembly consisting of 30 elected members. There is a Judicial Commissioner's Court. The pattern of civil and criminal administration is the same as obtaining in the rest of the country. There is one District Magistrate for the whole of the Territory which is divided into ten revenue Sub-divisions of which Khowai is under a Deputy Collector and the other nine are each under a Sub-Deputy Collector. For the supervision of the work of Sub-Deputy Collectors these nine Sub-divisions were grouped into three zones with a Deputy Collector in charge of each. Two members of Parliament represent the Territory in the Lok Sabha and one in Rajya Sabha.

The population of Tripura rose from 6,39,000 in 1951 to 11,42,000 in 1961. Such an increase in population was mainly due to heavy influx of refugees from the neighbouring districts of East Pakistan after partition. Tripura saw the first influx of refugees in 1941 when communal riots broke out in the district of Dacca. After partition refugees in their thousands again trekked into Tripura for a safe shelter and an honourable living. The rush of influx became so heavy at times that normal arrangements tended to give way upsetting the economic equilibrium of this small Territory. The influx of refugees again became very heavy in 1963 when thousands of families entered Tripura through unauthorised routes. Thus a constant flow of homeless people from East Pakistan has kept this acute problem alive all along. In fact the refugees now outnumber the original inhabitants. The sex ratio is 1000 males to 932 females. The majority of the population is Hindu. About 20% of the population is literate. 3,60,070 persons belong to the scheduled tribes and 1,19,725 persons to the scheduled castes, according to the 1961 census.

Admittedly a backward area this hilly Territory of Tripura has been making noticeable progress in certain spheres of development such as Education, Health, Agriculture, Roads etc. under the three five year plans. The year under review has taken the Territory a step further in its onward march.

Apart from the rapid increase in the number of educational institutions the most important of the recent developments in the sphere of Education are the starting of a Music College, a Women's College, an Engineering College and one B.T. College for Secondary Teachers' Training.

Tripura has made great headway in the field of Medical and Public Health also. With the employment of highly qualified Surgeons, Physicians, Gynaecologists etc. in different hospitals, the patients suffering from serious diseases are no longer referred to Hospitals out-side the Territory for better treatment except in very special circumstances.

In the field of Agriculture also the progress is remarkable. While in 1951 the acreage of cultivable land was 4,71,800, area under cultivation at present is 7,97,409 acres of land at present. Paddy in three seasons (aus, aman, boro) sugarcane, groundnut, pulses, mustard, cotton and jute are among the most important crops grown here.

Remarkable progress has been made in the field of communication. In the Pre-plan period Tripura had no metalled road, but only 197 kms. of kutcha road. At the end of 1965 the Territory has 518 kms. of metalled road, 520 kms. of black topped roads and 596 kms. of kutcha roads.

With a view to bringing the tribal people educationally and economically on a level with the general population of the country as speedily as possible the Government adopted various schemes for the welfare of backward classes which have been in operation since the first Five Year Plan. Besides settling the "Jhumias" on plain lands in 47 Colonies, various programmes have been taken up for their upliftment. Apart from establishment of schools and hospitals at different places for the benefit of the tribal people, a number of boarding houses have been constructed for their children. Moreover, stipends are awarded regularly to tribal students residing in boarding houses.

Thus with the systematic expansion of medical facilities even in the remotest rural areas ; construction of highways ; setting up of colonies for shifting tribal cultivators ; introduction of improved agricultural method ; promotion of cottage industries and setting up of medium industries, Tripura has been endeavouring to keep pace with the rest of India in its onward march to planned prosperity.

Apart from import from the Central pool, procurement of rice and paddy was also undertaken locally in order to support firm prices in the surplus areas and check smuggling. The quantum of local procurement was 222 tonnes of rice and 3,440 tonnes paddy.

Food grains were supplied to the people through fair price shops against family cards. In September, 1965, the Government of India sanctioned a scheme for building up of buffer stocks of essential foodstuff. The scheme aimed at building up stocks of rice, wheat, salt, edible cereals, pulses and sugar upto two months' requirements on Government account. The stocks were replenished from time to time to ensure that two months' supplies were always in hand. The existing storage accommodation was augmented by hiring private godowns. The stocks were sold to traders in 5 selected places of the Territory. The prices for the sale of the commodities were fixed by the Government taking into account the Government issue price which was determined on "no profit and no loss" basis and a reasonable margin of profit for the traders. If, however, the prices fixed by the Government were found to be more than the market prices, the commodities were sold at the market prices and in that case, the losses were subsidised by the Government as far as practicable. An amount of Rs. 1,380/- was paid by the Government during the year on account of subsidy. The following table will show the quantity of various essential foodstuff procured to build up the buffer stocks, the quantity released for sale, and the quantity in stock as on 31.3.66 :—

The import and distribution of essential commodities including controlled commodities were made on trade account. To meet the situation arising out of the In do-Pak conflict, the organisation undertook trading in essential foodstuffs like salt, pulses, mustard oil and wheat products to build up buffer stocks equivalent to two months' requirement.

During the year, 2,456 bundles of G.C.I. sheets and 1,485 tonnes of cement were imported, of which 1,316 bundles of G. C. I. sheets and the entire quantity of cement were distributed to the public. Cement was decontrolled from 1st January, 1966.
